THURSDAY, April 30, 1761.

Whitehall, April 30, 1761.

THIS Morning the Honorable Captain Barrington, Commander of His Majeſty's Ship Achilles, arrived with the following Letters from Major General Hodgſon, and the Honorable Commodore Keppel, to the Right Honorable Mr. Secretary Pitt.

Belleiſle, Four o'Clock in the Morning, April 23, 1761.

SIR,

AS I have juſt had a Note from Commodore Keppel, to inform me, that a Frigate will ſail this Day for England, I have only Time to acquaint you, that His Majeſty's Troops under my Command landed Yeſterday at Five: The Enemy's Attention was ſo diſtracted with our Attempts of landing at different Places, where there was the leaſt Appearance of our being able to ſucceed, that it gave Brigadier Lambert an Opportunity of climing up a Rock with a Corps I had left with him for that Purpoſe, if practicable: The Difficulty of mounting had made the Enemy leaſt attentive to that Part. Beauclerk's Grenadiers, with their Captain Patterſon, got up before they ſaw what was intended. They immediately marched a Body of 300 Men to attack him. The Grenadiers maintained their Ground till the reſt of Brigadier Lambert's got up. We took three Braſs Field Pieces, and ſome wounded Priſoners. It is impoſſible for me ſufficiently to commend Mr. Lambert's Conduct and gallant Behaviour on the Occaſion; and take the Liberty to beg you will permit me to requeſt you will recommend him to the King, as an Officer deſerving His Majeſty's Favour. Captain Patterſon has loſt his Arm. I believe our Loſs is not above 30 killed. I am afraid you will not be able to read this Scrawl, as I write it in the Field, the Troops being on their March.

I am, &c.

S. Hodgſon.

Valiant, in the Great Road of Belleiſle, April 23, 1761.

SIR,

I HAD the Honor to write you a Letter by the Actæon Frigate, in which I gave but little Hopes; ſince which Time, the General and myſelf having conſidered, that by attempting a Place where the Mounting the Rocks was juſt poſſible, and where the Enemy were no other Ways prepared, from the impracticable Appearance it had to them, than by a Corps of Troops to annoy the Boats in the Attempt, that it carried ſome Degree of Hopes with it, and by making a Diſpoſition for the Attack of their intrenched Bays, and at Sauzon at the ſame Time, which the Arrival of the Tranſports with the Light Horſe enabled me to do, we might poſſibly gain a Footing. I have now the greateſt Pleaſure in acquainting you, That His Majeſty's Troops have made good a Landing on the Rocks near Point Lomaria; and cannot ſufficiently commend the Spirit and good Behaviour of the Troops in the Attempt; and the Judgment, with which Sir Thomas Stanhope, and the reſt of the Captains of the King's Ships, directed the Fire upon the Hills.

Captain Barrington having been employed in many of the Operations on this Service, I have ſent him Home with this Letter; and beg, Sir, to refer you to him for the Particulars.

I have the Honor to be, &c.

A. Keppel.

N. B. The Actæon Frigate, mentioned in the Beginning of this Letter, is not yet arrived.

The following are the Letters, which were received on the 19*th Inſtant, from Major General Hodgſon, and the Honorable Commodore Keppel, relative to the firſt Attempt againſt the Iſland of Belleiſle.*

On Board the Valiant off Belliſle, April 12, 1761.

SIR,

I HAVE the Honour to acquaint you, that His Majeſty's Fleet under the Command of Commodore Keppel, and the Tranſports with His Majeſty's Forces on Board, came to an Anchor in this Road on Tueſday the 7th Inſtant, about Twelve o'Clock. Soon after their Arrival, I went with the Commodore to take a View of the Coaſt, and we agreed, at our Return, that the Port of St. Andro appeared to us to be the beſt Place to make a Deſcent, and it was ſettled, that Sir Thomas Stanhope, with ſome of His Majeſty's Ships, and the Tranſports with Stuart's and Grey's Battalions, and Marines on Board, ſhould make a Feint at Sawzon, at the ſame Time that we made a real Attack at St. Andro. Then it was too late in the Day to do more than give the neceſſary Orders for the Troops, deſtined to land firſt, to be ready to embark, early in the Morning, in the Flat bottomed Boats, that I might attempt a Landing as ſoon as the Ships had ſilenced a Four Gun Battery, which commanded the Entrance of the Bay. This was ſoon done by the Achilles, after ſhe took her Station. No Time was then loſt to go in with the Boats with the Grenadiers, and Regiments, ordered for this Service; but when we entered the Bay, we found the Enemy ſo ſtrongly intrenched on each Side of the Hill, which was ſo exceſſively ſteep, and the Foot of it ſcarped
